Measuring the Baby. We measured riotous baby

- A dispured riotous bady
  Against the cottage wall:
  A lify grow at the threshold,
  And the boy was just as tell
  A royal tager filly,
  With spots of purple and gold,
  and a heart like a jeweled chalice
  The fragaint dew to hold. Without the blackbird whistled High up in the old roof trees, And to and tre at the window
- The red rose rocked her bees And the wee pink fists of baby Wate pever a moment still. inatching at shine and shades
- Ab me! in a darkened chamber, With the sunshine shot away, Ehrough tears that fell like bitter rain We measured the baby to-day, And the little bare feet that were dimple-
- And sweet as a budding rose, as onde by slie together In the hish of a long repose
- Up from the dainty pillow,
  White as the risen dawn,
  A fair little face lay smiling
  With the light of heaven thereon,
  And the dear little hands, like rose leaves
  Dropped from the rose, lay still,
  Never to eatch at the smeshine
  That crept to the shrouded slil We marsh ad the cleaning halo

On the 18th of August, 1870, a crowd of people was collected, in Berlin, around the stone pillars on which the government war builetins were exhibited. There were many, and those behind could not see the placard. Read it aloud," was the goneral cry. 'Don't crowd so, my dear woman," said i "Quick, Edith."
Sho posted herself on the curbstone, and, as the Grand Duke passed, said, in her sweetest voice, "Good morning, highness." tat official to a woman with a child, who made good use of her olbows. "What do voa care about the disputches?"
"What do I care?" cried the woman with dashing eyes, "My husband is with the army at Metz, and-"

"Room for the soldier's wife," ordered the crowd, and she was permitted to go for-A stout gentleman with golden spectacles now read the bulletin aloud, from which it appeared that the enemy had endeavored to pierce the lines at Point a Mousson, but been repuled after a combat of twelve clouded the dispatch

Suddenly the boll was rung and Madame Lucen or dered: 'Tell John to get the car-rlage ready. Where is my maid? Ah, Edith, ust in time. Put a change of clothes in the mall trunk, and, here is money, purchase all my wounded husband needs; pigeons, spring chickens in tin boxes, beef extract, etc., and have it packed up with some boxes of the best eights, and a dozen bottles of -- Burgundy. Ill drive to the Secretary of the Interior and get a passport. As soon as I have it we start." "Where to !" inquired the doctor "Where to? To the camp. I'll get my husband and take him home." "But the dispatch does not say where your husband it, and you will hardly find him just now."

"I'll hunt throw, a all Alsatia and Lorraino till I have found hem.'
"Your maid is about to buy meat: He will not be able to take those as yet." But he must eat?"

"But he has his eyes open."
"Only the left. The muscles of that eye have been torn by the bullet, He is also dear on the left side, and his face para-"Certainty; but coffee, ten, sugar, con-densed milk, and beef extract, those are his proper dust. If you wish it, I'll affend to that matter." Doctor, I could kis , you Don't hesitate."

After this Lucen entered her carriage and drove to the secretary's office. The Count Lulenburg mentioned every possible objecion. Re and the railroads were covered with aimy tining, and no private cars could be attached.

"Excellency," replied Madame Luces, where are no obstacles which I dare not brave. If I can't take cars or procure horses, I'll find some other way. I'll go, if I must saddle a cow."

The secretary hesitated no longer. He gave her pasaports in German and Freuch, requesting the authorities to lend all posside assistance to her in her endeavors. "Excellency, I thank you. Please under-tine that about the assistance. I will probably need it. A few hours after this the lady and her maid were in a railroad car, their trunk and the box of oranges, desicoated vegetables, and wine with the baggage. For three hours the train went without stoppage. Then there was a long whistle. "Leave the cars and receive your bag gage," and the conductor.

"Why?" inquired M'me Lucea, "I am quite comfortable here."

"Sorry, Just received a telegram from Saarbruck. This train is to await the arrival of the Frankfort train, receive wounded and return to Berlin. But when does the other train come that carries us turther? " Cau't say." The ladies got out and sat on their boxes, The next train was full of horses, guns, horse feed, and soldiers, and the conductor refused altogether to take them. Then the prima donna exhibited her passports.

"Ah M'me Lucen," said the conductor bowing, "You are going to your wounded husband. That's a different case. But I in the rifle pits were in agony lest she should get hurt. But as she said: "No French bullet was so unmannerly as to hit is lady." Next day she started for Berlin with her den't know where to place you." "Who sits in that car ! "The officers."

We will shrink us much as posuble." "Why, that's Lucca?" they eried in chorus. "Alas, it is I, whom they want to leave here, shipwrecked and alone," she declaimed with theatrical pathou They made room for her, the maid and the boxes, and a metry conversation ensued. After a few hours the train stopped.

"Are we fnot yet at Frankfort?" asked

The mimals were brought into the barracks at the time the company returned and they are now nine or ten months old. "Buckshot" has lately been training them all to drive in harness, having had a harness with a peculiar bit, made for them by the saddler at the barracks, and he has also had a sleigh rigged up for them. The two bucks are now pretty well trained and can be driven like a team of horses. "Buckshot" recently drove them to Florence and back, considerably astonish ing the natives of that rural place. It is said that he can drive them so as to make better time than Goldsmith Maid or Lucy. In a few days he intends to bring them into town and take a lively whirl through our principal
